

ABOUT THE STATE.

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

The Congregational church of Putney has extended a call to Rev. Arthur Hunt of Revere, Mass., to become its pastor.

Seven thousand three-year-old spruce trees are being planted on Dr. H. F. Walker's land on Nickwackett mountain in Pittsford.

There were 21 deaths in Rutland during April, cerebral hemorrhages leading the list of causes with five cases. There were 29 transmissible disease cases in the city, scarlet fever leading with 11.

F. M. Morse of St. Albans, conductor on the Central Vermont, received a fractured arm when thrown against the side of the caboose when leaving St. Albans one night as the emergency brakes were applied suddenly. Both bones of his lower left arm were broken.

Following a meeting of the Rutland board of education Monday, teachers in that city are to get substantial raises, beginning with the school year in September and all the old teachers were re-elected. The increase to all grade teachers will amount to $1,280 and to the high school teachers, $2,000.

A tenement house at Enosburg Falls, belonging to George Erwin and occupied by Charles Brown, was destroyed by fire Friday with a loss of $1,000, there being a small insurance. The fire was discovered by Samuel Rushlow, who lives nearby. The cell was ablaze and within a few minutes the main part was in flames. The family were away from home at the time.

Rutland refuses to use her highway money for street sprinkling and if any is done, it will have to be by private subscription. At Monday night's aldermanic meeting, the assessors objected to the salary named for them, $3 per day, saying that Montpelier was paying $3.00 and Burlington $4, but the $3 motion was carried. Opposition was also expressed against paying the new street superintendent, A. G. Perry, $2,200 per year, but the motion was carried, five to four.

MINING LAWS OF AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

Report of United States Geological Survey Compares Leasing and Freehold.

The interest and discussion lately manifested in the proposal to lease the public mineral and other lands instead of disposing of them in fee has called attention to the report of the United States Geological Survey on the mining laws of the Australian states. A. C. Vane, the author of the report, visited Australia and New Zealand in 1907-08 as a special representative of the American government to study the mining laws of those countries, and his reports were printed by the geological survey as bulletin 505. While not to be considered as an exhaustive treatise, this series of reports undoubtedly constitutes the best available collection of authoritative data bearing on the practical working of mineral land laws that are essentially different from those of the United States code. They not only give in considerable detail the special provisions, terms, and conditions of the different laws, as well as statistical information regarding the extent of mining operations in the countries considered, but also contain much testimony by practical mining men who are operating under these laws. On this account the reports are believed to furnish a valuable basis for comparison between the leasehold and freehold systems in their effect upon mining development.

Granite Quarry—and Shop for Sale!

The undersigned offer for sale their quarry, known as the Hardwick Granite company quarry, which consists of 10 acres of quarry land located on a public highway one mile from railroad (down hill all the way).

This quarry has been worked about 25 years and has produced the best monumental stock quarried in this vicinity. This granite, known as DARK BLUE HARDWICK, is of a handsome dark blue shade. It receives and retains a brilliant polish, shows lettering and tracing plainly, and stands the test of our northern climate without rust or discoloration, and we are prepared to back up these statements by numerous monuments which have been exposed for twenty years and remain clean and bright. After being thoroughly tested, its fine working and wearing qualities are universally conceded.

The quarry is equipped with a good derrick and hoist, blacksmith shop, and the usual outfit of tools. On this 10-acre lot there is an undeveloped quarry of light, fine granite, which makes good hammer work.

We also offer for sale our cutting shop in Hardwick village, directly opposite the railroad station, and one of the best locations in the town for manufacturing. The lot is about 12 rods wide on the railroad and 17 rods back. The shop will accommodate two or three gangs of cutters, and there is room on the lot for additional shops if desired. A good derrick takes stone directly from the shops and loads on cars.

The village of Hardwick furnishes electric power for all manufacturers for the low price of $30 per h. p. To anyone wishing to engage in the monumental business in a granite town, we can offer superior inducements. We should be glad to answer inquiries or to show the property to anyone interested.
